ROUSS ESTATE. The suit of Elizabeth S. Cowen, to recover $39,250 from the estate of Charles Broadway Rouss, on the plea that he promised to support her for life because of his failure to marry her, was dismissed yesterday at New York by Supreme Court Justic-Greenbaum, on motion of council for the Rouss estate, after all the evi dence for the plaintiff had been heard.

The suit of Mrs. Cowen is only one of the many actions instituted by women against the Rouss estate, alleging that the rich old blind mer chant had promised to support then or their children, or both. The ex ecutors have settled several such suits, and in one or two instances thwomen have got verdicts against the estate.

A MOCK MARRIAGE.

A. H. Hummel, counsel for Mrs Cowen, said that the plaintiff was sixteen years old when she first met Rouss. He said that Rouss took her marrage ceremony. Mr. Hummel said that subsequently the plaintiff discovered that Rouss had a wife, and that in 1893 Rouss entered into an agreement to pay her $50,000 in installments.

Counsel said that under this agreement Rouss paid her $5,000, and promised to pay the remainder at the rate of $50 a month. He said that the blind merchant continued the payments until shortly before his death, and that there now remained due to the woman $39,250, with interest.
